K026	A Marrieres Wood Died of Wounds British War Medal 1914-1918 issued to Pte R.R.P. HOWSE 1ST SAI Howes succumbed to his multiple wounds received at Marrieres Wood on 24th March, on 26th March. He is one of the few Marrieres Wood casualties (because of his wounding) who has a known grave. He is buried in the Dernan Court Communal Cemetery Extension Grave VII AA 31. In terms of real strategic importance, the achievement of the South African Brigade at Marrieres Wood eclipses Deville Wood but for propaganda purposes, to mollify a stunned South Africa, Deville Wood was given undue prominence because of the horrific casualties suffered. 15 Pages of copied research including service	EF	750

(See Desmore, A.J.B. “With the 2 nd Cape Corps through Central Africa Publ 1920) Baas had seen previous military service during the Anglo Boer war in the Transport and Remounts section but received no Medallic reward. He enlisted for service with the 2 nd Cape Corps on 13 March 1917. Disease left him unscathed until a brief spell of malaria caused him to be repatriated to South Africa on 29/7/18, arriving back at the 2 nd Cape Corps depot in Kimberley on 6/8/1918 only to be struck down by the Influenza epidemic that swept through Kimberley in October where Baas died on 8 th October 1918. He is buried in the Kimberley (West end) cemetery. Grave Bl. E. Row B 25/26. The great majority of the 1914/18 burials in the West End Cemetery were due to the influenza epidemic of October 1918. He left a wife and 4 children. Complete WW I groups to colored’s are hard to find – 8 pages of copied research)	VF	1900

In 1897 he was in the 2nd contingent that saw service in the Bechuanaland campaign under command of Captain F.A. Saunders and subsequently, Major Tamplin. The major action undertaken by the 1st City was the attack on Galishwe's stronghold in the Langberg. On returning, Westaway relocated to Port Elizabeth where he joined the PAG and was promoted to Corporal. On the outbreak of the Anglo-Boer War he volunteered for service and did duties in the Cape Province which resulted in some skirmishes with the Boer forces. At the outbreak of the 1st World War Westaway was a Colour Sergeant in the PAG and accompanied the Regiment to Cape Town where garrison duties were their lot. This resulted in a mutiny by the troops as they felt they were missing out on the War and two companies of the Regiment were paid off. The remainder of the under strength Regiment, including Clr Sgt Westaway, were transferred to Simonstown. The remained there and at the Castle, Cape Town until July 1915. Clr Sgt Westaway's only medal for this war was the British War medal. Westaway stayed in the PAG for the remainder of the War and, in 1917 was awarded the Colonial Auxiliary Forces Long Service medal for 20 years service. It was gazetted on 26 January 1917.

STEVENSON – rare to a women officer Paule Andrée Stevenson attested for service in the 2nd World War on 15 August 1940. Although only awarded two medals she did see service in The Middle East SAAF Admin. Headquarters Mediterranean, only proceeding “up North” on 29 May 1945 – too late to qualify for any campaign stars. Her service is remarkable as she was already a member of the Women’s Aviation Association in April 1939. The association was absorbed into the Woman’s Auxiliary Air Force when the unit was formed on 1st June 1940 and undertook all duties possible from that of artisan to manning searchlights. In November 1940 she was taken off Officers Course for special duty. She finally completed her officers	EF	400

British War Medal 1939/45 and Africa Service medal both officially impressed P6315 W.S. Van der Merwe, mounted as worn with very good photograph of the recipient in Major's Uniform plus group photograph of II Supply air Transport Depot ASC with van der Merwe as O.C. and another as OC Staff 7 Ordinance Depot. Willem Schalk van der Merwe joined the Special Service Battalion (SSB) on 20/5/1938 at the age of 18 and the next year enlisted in the Permanent force. He advanced rapidly and by 1943 he was promoted WO1: an exceptional achievement in the Permanent Force. He then recurred a temporary commission in August 1945 and was promoted Lieutenant in 1948, having married a lass from Glasgow in 1944. He went on numerous courses. In the course for promotion from Lieut to Captain in 1951 he passed with 75% which was the highest mark attained in the Corps. He continued to do well and through private study attained three degrees including a BA. He achieved outstanding results on courses and examinations. He had appointments in Cape Town, Wynberg, Johannesburg, The SA Military College and Army HQ, often that of	EF	900

	Depot OC. All promotions and movements detailed. But sadly his aggressive nature was his undoing. In 1948 the OC of the SA Military College in recommending him for a commission stated that this Warrant officer has 'a forceful, aggressive, overbearing personality, abundant self-confidence and well developed initiative. He is intelligent with a photographic memory but is inclined to over-rate his own and under-estimate others ability ... he is able to adapt himself to new circumstances.' Agitated by a stubborn nature he developed a huge grudge resulting in interpersonal relations that were very damaging to his career which should have seen him achieve generals rank. His bitterness increased as those junior to him were promoted over his head to the point that in 1969 he applied to leave the army before retirement age. Even though there was no immediate replacement for him his job, the Chief of the SADF permitted his early retirement as being the best course for both parties. A fascinating in depth story of a career in the Permanent Force with 27 pages of copied research. So ended a military career that began with such promise.
